MARATHON GENERAL INFORMATION

"Where There's Nothing "to do" ...a peaceful serene community, blessed with friendly people, beautiful surroundings and delightful climate, punctuated with vibrant, energetic events...."

The unincorporated town of Marathon was founded in 1882 when the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio Railway first laid tracks through the townsite (now the Union Pacific tracks). It is the second largest community in Brewster County with a population of 430, but don't let that fool you, Marathon is a very cool place. Dominated by the Trost & Trost designed Gage Hotel, the community is filled with wonderful locations from West Texas elegant to the bizarre. There are great interior and exterior spaces well worth spending the extra scouting time. Is this the next filmmakers dream location? Come see for yourself and Shoot 'em Up in Magical Marathon!

~CITY & CITY SERVICES INFORMATION~ Area Code 432, Zip Code 79842, Dial 911 for all Emergencies

~LANDMARKS & ATTRACTIONS~

Bank Vault

“For many years, the local merchants acted as bankers for their customers. In 1907, the Marathon State Bank was organized. A fire destroyed the building owned by W. J. McIntyre and Sons in June 1920.” It appears the vault still remains standing at the rear of what is now the Brick Vault BBQ and Brewery.

Crinoids Hills

“Located at the road cut 5 miles west of Marathon on Hwy 90, digging around in the dirt could turn up fossils of various types deposited when the Marathon Basin was an inland sea.”

Cemetery

“Located at the 1/2 mile mark on the Post Road, the Marathon cemetery is a cemetery enthusiast’s dream. A lot can be gleaned about Marathon’s colorful past by walking around and noticing the layout and arrangement of the graves, some dating back to the 1800s.”

The Gage Hotel

“Welcome to the Gage Experience.” One of Trost & Trost’s early 20th Century creations with wonderful grounds and great ambience. Not only a good place to stay, but a great location in and of itself. (See the Gage under Hotels below for more information.)

Jail

“A windmill located in the middle of Marathon’s North First Street served as an early jail for drunkenness and petty crimes. The offender being chained to a leg of the windmill. Other structures were used to serve as a jail, however, as a result of numerous colorful escapes, it became apparent to the citizens that a better ‘Calaboose’ was needed. Rocks were then dug from a ledge on the northwest part of town and a jail was built to the south of the old Richey store. Upon completion of the upgrades to the cells in Alpine, the old ones were sent to Marathon.” (Except from the Magnificent Marathon Basin, Annejo P. Wedin 1989)

Marathon Historical Museum

Next door to Marathon Public Library

“The Marathon Historical Museum is housed in an adobe building constructed about 1886 that was the first schoolhouse in the area that later became Brewster County. Exhibits within the museum cover Marathon’s history through its settlers (Native American, Mexican and Anglo) and through specific artifacts and displays relating to railroads, ranching, mining, business, mercantile, industry, banking, the schools, the military, and geology.... The museum is operated by the Marathon Museum Society, chartered in 1977. Visitors may visit the museum by obtaining a key from the Marathon Public Library, located next door to the Museum.”

Post Road

“Starting at the center of town, the post road runs south for 5 miles to the Post Park. Marked in 1/2-mile increments, very little traffic, and fabulous views makes this road ideal for running, walking and biking. Wildlife such as deer, javelinas, turkey, or even an occasional fox can be seen in the early mornings or late evenings.” What makes this road so special is the lack of posts, poles, reflectors, mile markers, or basically any signage at all. Makes for that all too rare clean shot.

Post Park (Camp Peña Colorado)

Post Park is an old-fashioned County Park five miles south of Marathon, featuring cottonwoods, a spring-fed pond, picnic tables, dance slab and barbecue area with lots of parking. Usually open to the public 24-7 it may also be reserved for special events. It is one of the few accessible sources of spring water in the Big Bend region. Lots of room and neat history.
